Testimony in the hearing of Harry Daverkosen, for alleged fraudulent use of the United States mails held before Court Commissioner Tallman today indicates that the prisoner had legal counsel in his acts and it was brought out that on several occasions that Harry L. Maxfield is alleged to have aided Mr. Daverkosen in securing money, or writing to clients relative to payment of bills owed Daverkosen for services.

In fact the case took such a turn into this afternoon that United States district attorney Morgan asked that it be continued until March 28th until he could more thoroughly investigate the new testimony which he believed tended to show that the prisoner acted under local advice and might possibly bring new complications into the case.

Letters alleged to have been written by Maxfield to clients of Daverkosen were read and the defendant in the action testified under oath as to minor details by which he alleged both he and Maxfield obtained money from several parties. The testimony proved most interesting in view of the fact of the present prominence of the attorney mentioned in the case.

Daverkosen was continued under the same bail, $1000 for appearance on March 28th when the hearing will be continued and it is expected the government will be ready to take some definite action in the matter.

Hearing is Called.

Daverkosen's hearing was called before Federal Court Commissioner Stanley D. Tallman in the municipal court room shortly after eleven o'clock this morning. The session, until adjournment for the noon recess at twelve o'clock was devoted entirely to the preliminary remarks of Assistant United States District Attorney H. H. Morgan, of Madison, who reviewed the law on the case and read the complaint.

He stated at the beginning that the case was purely a matter of violation of the statutes which govern the use of the postal facilities and had nothing at all to do with the common law. He read the section of the postal regulations applying to the case and then proceeded to explain his case to the court.

Law Extremely Strict.

The law in the matter of the postal regulations, he said, was extremely strict and, in a measure, inflexible. The object of Section 215 of the postal regulations was to guard against the federal government's becoming a party in any way to fraud, or any attempt, on the part of anyone, to secure money or goods under false pretenses through the use of the post-office as a means.

He referred to the case in hand in which Post-Office Inspector Jackson P. Walker appeared as the complainant, and referred to the specific case in which Daverkosen was alleged to have sent his literature to one P. J. Holyoke, Milwaukee, in which he averred that he could and would answer all questions on any matter of business, law, health and so on.

Clairvoyance, A Fraud.

Mr. Morgan declared that the whole matter of clairvoyance and travel mediums was a fraud and a delusion, and declared that it was spreading the number of people who confided in persons claiming to possess such powers. He stated that he was not satisfied at the amount of correspondence which the defendant, Daverkosen, carried on, and stated that from it it might be judged that he had, instead of one, hundred and perhaps thousands of persons who were his clients, deluded in the belief that he could give them advice or that he would give them something in return for their money.

Was Badly Advised.

Mr. Morgan stated that from this amount of correspondence, Daverkosen must have had assistance of some kind in attending to it. He also referred to a slip, which purported to be a copy of the postal laws which was enclosed in his advertising matter and letters to his clients. It was, on the contrary, said Mr. Morgan, a copy of the old regulations, and if Mr. Daverkosen had been advised on the matter, he had been wrongly informed.

Whoever it was who worked with the defendant, he must have known that he was adding in the obtaining of money fraudulently, and one adding or assisting the defendant in collecting money would be equally guilty in the case. Since he believed that Mr. Daverkosen had been ill-advised on the matter, if the latter would admit it in order to protect himself, the government would take that matter under consideration in dealing with him (Daverkosen).

Use of a Deceit.

Mr. Morgan spoke with some feeling as to the case in which Daverkosen is said to have made threats of garnishment to a poor man in Illinois who was driven nearly insane by Daverkosen's insanity and the flood of letters which he received from him and his assistants.

In closing his remarks Mr. Morgan referred to the practice of the government in using decoys to detect violations of the law. He stated that Post-Office Inspector Ralph Bird had acted under the alias, "P. J. Holyoke," and had received Daverkosen's literature after he had written to him as a client for information. This practice, said Mr. Morgan, was entirely allowable and had been upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Daverkosen attempted to break into the District Attorney's address at several times with demands or threats, but was repressed by his attorney, Thomas S. Nolan.

Is Candidate Involved?

At one point in the District Attorney's remarks Mr. Nolan interposed with the statement that Mr. Daverkosen's advice must be correct and that he must be able to tell the truth.

"Why," he said, "we have a candidate for the office of mayor of the city of Janesville who consulted with him once or twice a week, for I don't know how many years in regard to his affairs."

"Who is he? What's his name?" interrupted Inspector Walker.

"Sever mind," said Mr. Nolan, "we'll bring that out later, perhaps."

Daverkosen on Stand.

Harry Daverkosen went on the stand and clearly indicated in his testimony that he had acted on all occasions on the advice of a local attorney.

District Attorney H. H. Morgan in addressing the court declared that he considered the testimony of Daverkosen, that he had sought and received advice on the matter of sending his circulars and literature through the mail, a fraud.

Has Sympathy.

"I say that I have great sympathy for the defendant in this matter," said Mr. Morgan. "The government is seeking for the persons who are taking part in this use of the mails to defraud, and I do not care who the attorney is. If he, himself, sent a letter through the mails for his client, he is a party in the attempt to defraud."

Attorney Thomas S. Nolan, for the defendant, objected to the revelation of the name of the attorney who had been repeatedly referred to throughout the testimony of Mr. Daverkosen. "This man is not mentioned in the complaint, and there has been no complaint entered against him."

Court Rules.

It was the opinion of the court, however, that material with reference to the case could properly be introduced at this time and if the United States District Attorney considered the matter of importance to his case, no might proceed.

Mr. Morgan then indicated that the letters he was about to read in regard to the case were not part of those which were taken from Mr. Daverkosen's rooms after his arrest had been made. He stated that it was not any of the matter which the government confiscated through the power obtained in the search warrant. It had come to him and the postal inspectors from a third party entirely outside of the city.

Maxfield's Letters.

Mr. Morgan then read the letter which was from Harry L. Maxfield and which had the following heading: "Harry L. Maxfield, Attorney, Room No. 2, Central Block, Rock County Telephone 230, Office of the City Attorney."

The letter was addressed to a woman whose name was withheld and was notice to the effect that if she did not immediately make settlement for a bill of some $27, which she had contracted with Prof. Daverkosen for services received, suit or garnishment proceedings would be brought against her unless the bill was promptly settled.

Did Collecting.

Daverkosen testified that Attorney Maxfield had done practically all his legal business, dunning and collecting since he had started in business. He had turned business his way whenever any of his clients or those seeking advice needed legal counsel. The defendant related that on one occasion a woman from Shullsburg came to him for treatment.

Had Money.

She was told that she needed attention at once or she would die. The woman, whose name was not disclosed, replied that she had no money to pay for her treatment. Daverkosen had told her that she could not pay. The woman admitted that she should have but that her brother had it all. Upon this he advised her that if she wrote out a check for five hundred dollars it would be honored and cashed at the bank in her home town.

Plan Worked.

On her second visit the woman came back declaring the plan had worked and promised Daverkosen half of the money she claimed was hers if he obtained it for her. This proposition he would not accept but referred her to Maxfield and said she could pay him (Daverkosen) "what she thought was right."

Maxfield he said visited Shullsburg, about a couple of days there and returned declaring that all things had been nicely arranged, that the woman had a considerable amount of money.

Had Trouble.

Maxfield had deposited this money in a bank and Daverkosen had received two notes which Maxfield, after a dispute accepted and gave him $1000. Maxfield, said Daverkosen, had threatened at the time of this dispute to kick him out of his office.

STORM RAGES OVER
CHICAGO; STREETS

and Trains in Chicago—Western Trains Held Up.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, March 15.—A snowstorm amounting almost to a blizzard raged here throughout last night and still continues with the prediction from the weather bureau that it will last throughout the day with falling temperature. The snow came in with a driving west wind yesterday at noon and street car companies have had sweepers running on their lines at intervals of about twenty minutes. Early today it was impossible for one to see more than one hundred yards ahead of him on the street.

Streets Blocked.

Streets are blocked and steam and elevator railways were compelled to stop special cars during the rush hours this morning. No serious accidents were reported during the early hours. Telegraph companies likewise report that the worst condition of the winter prevails.

Snow was wet and heavy making conditions under foot miserable. Storm is due to reach eastern seaboard tonight.

Hard Work.

Throughout the day the railways fought to keep their trains running. Eastern roads declared they had comparatively little trouble. West of the Mississippi schedules were practically lost sight of.

The conditions of the roads was indicated in a statement made by officials of the Chicago Burlington and Quincy railways.

"East of the Missouri said the statement," conditions are not nearly so bad as west. The snow is not so deep nor is it as cold. All west of the Missouri is snow in.

In Iowa, March 15.—In coming trains from the west were several hours behind schedule time early today as the result of the blizzard which swept Iowa and Nebraska last night.

In the West.

Two fast trains on the Rock Island line from Denver were held up several hours near Council Bluffs, and two west bound trains were unable to leave Des Moines. Strong wind piled the snow in huge drifts. Railway officials say conditions are somewhat improved and hope to be able to return to schedule time within a few hours.

Six Trains Missing.

Kansas City, March 15.—Because of broken wires no news had been received this morning of six Rock Island trains reported stalled in snow drifts with over 300 passengers at Golden, Kan. The company has every available man working to clear the line to that point.

In Big Drift.

Keota, Kan., March 15.—An east bound passenger train on the Rock Island road with 50 passengers on board was snowbound near here at 6 o'clock last night until nearly noon today.

ANTHRACITE MINERS
MAKE FINAL ANSWER
TO THE OPERATORS*Offer no Counter Propositions for Consideration by the Mine Owners at All.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 15.—The committee of anthracite mine workers has made final inspection of the completed answer to the reply of the anthracite coal operators including the demands for an increase in wages, recognition of the union and other conditions, and declared its readiness to submission at the joint meeting of the operators and miners this afternoon.

Counter Propositions.

The answer contains no counter propositions to the operators but takes up point by point the already refused demands and gives reason for making them. With both sides apparently standing firm just what move can be made in the way of a compromise is problematical. Meanwhile, the bituminous operators and their employees will confer at Cleveland on March 20th. The retail price of hard coal advanced again today.

Later Work.

"All negotiations with the anthracite coal operators are off," declared John T. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America at the adjournment of the meeting this afternoon between the miners and the operators in which the miners defined the operators' counter-proposition. "I look for a general suspension of work on April 1," he added.

"Will there be a strike?" he was asked.

"I can't say as to that," he replied.

"The miners' official will discuss the matter this afternoon."

The meeting between the miners and the operators was brief. Mr. White read to the operators the miners' reply to their rejection of the miners' demands. It was received without comment and the meeting adjourned.

In England.

London, March 15.—Another deadlock has been reached in the negotiations of a settlement of the coal strike that is paralyzing industry throughout the united kingdom but premier Asquith strenuously is endeavoring to bring the parties together.

No More Confabs.

There will be no further joint meetings of the miners and coal owners this week, but it is reported the negotiators do not despair of reaching an agreement. The conference at the foreign office adjourned at 7 o'clock.

Coaling the World's Ships.

The threatened interruption of the coal supply in England has brought out some interesting estimates as to the coal supply of the world's great navies, both naval and mercantile. Last year about 1,000,000 tons of coal were supplied to vessels at American ports, to be placed in their bunkers for their own use. In England some 20,000,000 long tons were supplied to vessels in foreign trade and 2,500,000 tons to vessels in the coastwise trade. The total amount of coal used by these two countries alone for bunkering is, therefore, over 30,000,000 tons. It is estimated that the coal consumed on the ocean of the world is approximately 75,000,000 tons per annum, valued at about $250,000,000. It is believed that the opening of the Panama Canal will develop a great American coal station upon the isthmus, which will be supplied from the mines of the United States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Lincoln, Neb., March 15.—Early today no definite traces had been found of the three convicts who escaped from the Nebraska State Prison yesterday during a blinding snow storm following an outbreak in which the warden, deputy warden, and usher were killed outright, and the guard was slightly wounded.

The escaped prisoners were clued only in their prison walls. It is believed they were misled by confederates from the outside of the prison. The posse which pursued the men yesterday returned to the city exhausted last night owing to their struggle to get through deep snow drifts. The weather was clear and cold this morning.

A posse led by Sheriff Myers and city detective Schmitt hurried to a spot where they were seen and surrounded a fly stack. Knowing the men were armed they crept slowly upon the place and finally rushed in only to find no one there. However, had given out in the race through the snow which came upon their bodies and were left with neighboring farm. The party then waded through the snow to the railway a mile away and exhausted by their exertions waited for the arrival of a special engine which got them back to the city.

Since that time a posse has been kept on hand at the sheriff's office but not a word has been reported as to the whereabouts of the escaped criminals.

Strict orders have been given to train crews to keep a sharp lookout for suspects. Burlington trains are carrying armed detectives.

Jamestown, N. D., March 15.—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin, announced here today that he would campaign Nebraska, Oregon and Washington in April previous to the presidential preference primary in those states.

He made this announcement after a conference with Walter L. Houser, his campaign manager, who has just returned from the Pacific coast.

Mr. Houser, immediately following his conference with La Follette, issued a detailed statement of one thing and words, in which he said that Gifford Pinchot personally knew that Col. Roosevelt had encouraged the candidacy of La Follette.

"Pinchot knows that Roosevelt not only encouraged, but was favorable to La Follette's candidacy until it came to appear that it might succeed," the statement read.

Madison, Wis., March 15.—Friends of the Wisconsin man in this city are declaring that the tide of public sentiment is swinging back in favor of Senator La Follette's candidacy for the presidency, and indications of this trend are seen in telegrams which are being received at the editorial offices of his magazine here. His closest friends say that his trip to North Dakota has successfully dispelled the idea that the Senator is critically ill.

One message from Grand Forks, N. D., this morning read: "Things are pretty excited here since the Senator is coming."

Senator La Follette will make six speeches in North Dakota. His itinerary as given out here last night, follows:

At Valley City, Thursday, 7:40 p. m.; at Jamestown, Friday, 9:00 a. m.; at Mandan, Friday, 2:30 p. m.; at Bismarck, Friday 7:40 p. m.; at Fargo, Saturday, 2:00 p. m.; at Grand Forks, Saturday evening.

That as interested and spirited a fight will be waged in California as is now being made in North Dakota, was indicated by a telegram received here from A. L. Banks, of Stockton, Cal., and forwarded to the Senator at Jamestown, N. D., this morning. It read:

"The Stockton Record, the leading progressive daily of the San Joaquin valley, and which is owned by Irving Johnson, a close friend of Governor Johnson, and who has been foremost in the battle for reform in this state, refuses to support Roosevelt. The Record is going into this fight for La Follette delegates. Under Martin's direction the Record refuses to change its candidates and the paper's stand has made a profound hit in this section of the state. Stockton is to be organized for you. The Record is the most conspicuous among papers that refused to abandon your candidacy. Give us a chance to get busy in California by sending a special word to California."

Senator La Follette intends to go to California a little later for a series of speeches.

This Is The Year's One Season
When The Call Of Style Is Heard By Every Man.

By J. R. HAMILTON

A man will wear any old shirt in the winter time, and in the summer he will wear no shirt at all if he can help it. His summer clothes are good enough for autumn, and he is willing to keep on wearing them till it gets too cold.

But when old winter turns the calendar and the first warm, perfumed days come creeping in, a man begins to look, for the first time, at his clothes, and before the spring has traveled very far, he is more eager for style than any woman could be.

For man is only an animal with property rights. And in the animal kingdom the plumage is worn by the male. It is the feathers or the fur of the male that is made to attract, and always those feathers and fur grow bright with color the moment the new spring comes.

If you want to see a good man become a good animal, just watch him when the first stirring of the new season gets into his veins. Watch him as he looks at his clothes and then at the looking-glass. Watch him as he adjusts his coat and cocks his head when he starts away in the morning. Watch him as he begins to sit up and take notice of new shirts and shoes, of suits and hats and ties.

OU'RE doubtless a good deal interested in new spring things to wear; hats; shoes, for men or women, shirts, neckwear, etc. The very newest of the new things are here awaiting your critical inspection.

Chief of Police George Appleby has been notified by W. W. Rhodes, superintendent of police in Peoria that the governor of Illinois offers a reward of $200 for the arrest of George Loesch, alias George Fisher, wanted to answer to a charge of murder. Fisher is twenty-seven years old; height, five feet, nine or ten inches; weight about one hundred and forty-five pounds; slim build; smooth face; auburn complexion; light brown hair, inclined to curl; small blue eyes, usually about half closed; small scar under left eye; interested in game chickens. He has worked as a bar tender and around implement factories.

NINETEEN GIVEN LODGINGS. AT STATION LAST NIGHT.

Tramps and Penniless Transients Sheltered by Police—Given Work Shoveling Snow in Yards.

Janesville makes no pretensions to maintaining a municipal lodging house for tramps, penniless transients, and those out of work but in effect has one at the police station. Hardly a night passes but the police do not give shelter to at least half a dozen men and usually more. As many as forty-five have been cared for. Nineteen spent last night at the station and this morning were given an opportunity to shovel snow in the railway yards. With the approach of spring a large exodus of unemployed from the larger cities takes place. When the weather becomes milder many of them camp out and the police do not receive so many requests for shelter.

EARLY MORNING SUMMONS TO PUT OUT CHIMNEY FIRE

Department Was Called From West Side Station at 1:00 A. M. to Corner of Wall and Academy Streets.

Sparks coming from the chimney of the Biemann building, corner of Wall and Academy streets, caused a fire alarm to be turned in at about one o'clock this morning from box 15. All four rigs, including the Chief's auto, and extension ladder, were brought out from the West Side station. The blaze was promptly extinguished with chemicals. The first floor of the Biemann building is occupied by Salfady Brothers' restaurant.

Know Thyself!

If you want to know how to account for yourself, study the characters of your relations. . . . You wonder at the eccentricities of this or that connection of your own. Watch yourself, and you will find impulses which, but for the restraints you put upon them, would make you do the same foolish things which you laugh at in that cousin of yours.—O. W. Holmes.

J. P. WHITE

MINERS' CHIEF SPURNS PEACE

New York City.—John P. White, president of United Mine-Workers of America, will refuse to consider a compromise with the mine owners. This much is certain and in view of the attitude of the owners in refusing to consider seriously the demands of the miners it is evident that a strike threatens the United States, which will produce a crisis almost as serious as that in Europe at the present time. Coal dealers here and in Chicago predict that the present supply will not last more than sixty days should the miners walk out and that manufacturing will be seriously handicapped in less than that time.

WESTON, VETERAN WALKER
SEVENTY-THREE YEARS OLD.

Still Indulges in Thirty-Mile Walks
Just to Limber Up—Plans to Take "Another Long Jaunt" in Two Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, March 15.—Edward Payson Weston, the veteran walker, reached his seventy-third birthday anniversary today. To all appearances he is as hale and hearty as most men of half his years. He has not been indulging in any long tramps of late, harrising an occasional walk of 25 or 30 miles "just to limber up," but he has hinted to friends that he may celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday two years hence by taking another long-distance walk.

During his long career, which extends over half a century, Weston has been a great American apostle of walking. He has been in all manner of heel and toe contests and it is calculated that in the period of fifty years he has covered a distance equal to three times the circumference of the earth. At seventy years of age he accomplished one of the greatest achievements recorded in the history of endurance and pluck, walking from New York to San Francisco in 105 days and walking the return journey across the continent in 77 days, "a feat without parallel in the annals of pedestrianism."

New York, March 15.—Western oarsmen never pulled harder in a little race than they are pulling just now for the championship regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. The date and place for holding this summer's regatta will be selected by the executive committee of the association at its annual meeting here tomorrow. The Westerners are united in a movement to have Peoria named as the regatta city. It is conceded that the fight is between Peoria and Boston, and from present indications the Illinois city has more than an even chance of winning out.

EDGERTON STORM SWEEP;
RAILWAY TRAFFIC DELAYED

Yesterday's Storm Has Serious Effects
at Tobacco City.—Other News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, March 15.—A heavy snow storm, which afterwards turned into a blizzard with high winds, swept over this section yesterday and continued until midnight. Owing to the high winds the highways are almost impassable, interfering greatly with the work of the rural carriers. Railway traffic also is crippled.

Edgerton News Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. George Underhill are taking possession of their elegant new residence on Washington street, which has just been completed. The structure is modern and up-to-date, with all improvements.

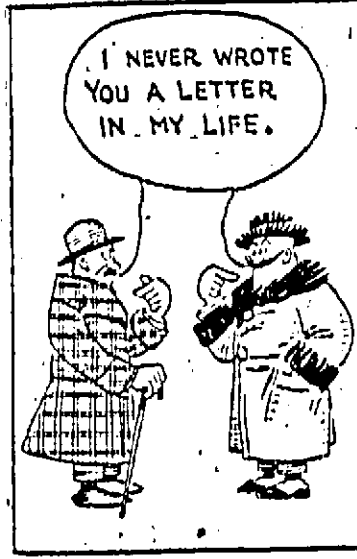

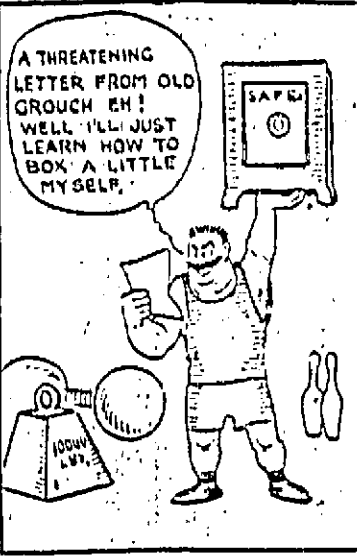

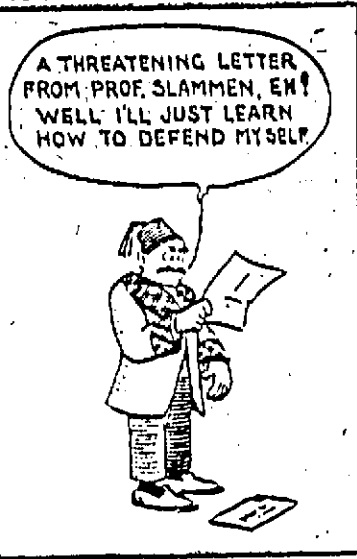

Kickers.

What is odious but noise, and people who scream and howl! People whose voice points always east, who live to dine, who send for the doctor, who coddle themselves, who toast their feet on the register, who intrigue to secure a padded chair and a corner out of the draught. Suffer them once to begin the enumeration of their infirmities, and the sun will go down on the unfinished tale.—Emerson.

Cultivate Self-Reliance.

By relying on our own resources we acquire mental strength, but when we lean on others for support we are like an invalid who, having accustomed himself to a crutch, finds it difficult to walk without one.

Thousands of sick have attested to the wonderful curative powers of the United Doctors' new system of medicine. In their Janesville Institute in the Hayes Bldg., corner of Milwaukee and Main St., there are hundreds of people being treated by the United Doctors' new system of medicine, and nothing but words of praise from the United Doctors' patients are heard.

The following letter written to the United Doctors from a cured and happy patient once again shows what the United system is doing in other cities also:

"I wish to make a statement as to the wonderful results that I received in a remarkably short space of time by the United Doctors. The United Doctors' system of medicine really did wonders for me for with the first bottle of medicine I felt entirely different and the second week's treatment made me so well I was able to do a good day's work and feel now I am getting stronger each day. I never expected such relief and especially in such short a space of time. The United Doctors' system is wonderful."

True Secret of Living.
The secret of living is the discovery of the greatest good, the things that are really worth the seeking, the values that do not fade nor depreciate. The greatest good you can do any person or people is to train them to make this discrimination, to help them to choose for themselves amongst the many possible prizes the ones that are worthy.

For Foreign Traveler.
One of the best gifts for a person taking foreign travels is a small down pillow, covered with fancy silk. This cushion should be about 12x3 inches, or a little larger. The silk should be of colors that will not show soil. The comfort given by this as steamers and trains cannot be overestimated.

A Gift for a Baby.
A charming gift for a new baby is a set of washed gold safety pins. These are not the small sets connected by a chain used to fasten the little frocks, but are ordinary safety pins specially gold washed for the purpose.

Highest Business Function.
The highest function of a business is the development and perfection of the health and character of the employee.

Footgear Brought Success.
It was the sturdy sandals of the Teutonic tribes that enabled them to march across Europe to the walls of Rome, and we know that the footgear of an army is still a most important part of its equipment. Those whom the Romans called Scythians wore rough sheepskin boots and the Gauls were already noted for their wooden shoes.

Priceless Relic Found.
The first original description of America ever written has just been discovered. It was penned by Dr. Hugo Alvarez Chancu, physician to the second fleet of Columbus, and was dated at the Port of Isabella, Santo Domingo, in January, 1494. Dr. Fernandez de Ybarra, of the New York Academy of Sciences, with the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, aiding and abetting, uncovered the documents.

are of the opinion that the commission law which created the new arrangement is explicit enough to follow.

So it goes. Not only has the mark of disapproval been shown in the case of the state laws, but even the head of the great movement that has placed Wisconsin in a position unique in the annals of history of the states, has thrown down the gauntlet to the other reformers who had supported him and is today in the Dakota exploiting his own cause to the detriment of one other who has turned on him, taken from him his organization and assumed the leadership of the ultra radical portion of the republican party.

We are told that those whom the Gods wish to destroy they first make mad. Is it not a question whether the great modern tower of Babel is not tottering? Is it not a problem how it can be bolstered up and the bricks made without straw given strength to withstand the flood of popular indignation that threatens to sweep away the very foundation?

THE SITUATION.

Local political leaders have confidence in the will of the people. We are on the verge of a primary that bids fair to become most interesting in its results. Changing from the rule of the council of ten men, transferring the business of the city into the hands of a mayor and two commissioners, is not a matter to be overlooked or passed upon without due consideration. It is a business proposition pure and simple. Janesville is a corporation with millions of dollars of investment. It is about to select the men who will conduct the affairs of that great corporation. The mayor and two commissioners chosen by popular vote will handle the business of this corporation and be responsible to the citizens and taxpayers for the results. Care must be taken in the selection of these men and it is up to the individual voters to exercise this care. They should not be swept away by the claims of this or that candidate who promises this or that thing publicly and the other thing privately. The interests of all citizens should be equal. There should be no favoritism shown to any class of taxpayers. The manufacturer, the merchant, the property-holder, both large and small, the public corporations, the wholesale and retail liquor dealers should all be treated on an equal basis. No favoritism should be shown. No advantage given to any special industry or business. The law is plain and should be lived up to. Law-breakers should not be permitted to go unpunished and men should be selected who will see these laws and ordinances are enforced.

The voters should not be swept away by the claim of a certain candidate who poses as a moral reformer, one who has done much for the good of suffering mankind at a personal sacrifice. Who has compelled numerous public utilities to bow their heads to the law and who, according to the claims advanced, has reduced the taxes of the city by making the tax-dodger pay his just share. A man like that claim, have you stopped to consider what it means? Have you figured out where the taxes are to be decreased and how much less you are to pay next year than in the past?

The city has been reassessed. This reassessment, or readjustment, was done by inexperienced men, strangers to Janesville for the most part, men who knew not the conditions that existed here, and while they did perhaps make the assessments upon some of the industries, some of the property, for the most part the readjustment hit the working man and woman and their small interests and they will be the sufferers. According to the readjustment the big public utilities will receive back a rebate from the taxes paid this year. Who pays this rebate? The small taxpayer, the owner of the city bonds, never before assessed, the small depositor in the savings banks, the owner of the little home. Part of the two million dollars of increase taxation comes out of their pockets.

Have you stopped to consider that if the big industries of the city are taxed to a stage where they are not making any money, who must pay the toll? Will the Janesville Machine company, in the open field of a close, hard competition, go on doing business if they find they are not making money? If the local taxes sap their vital existence? No, they will seek some method of curtailing the expenses and who first feels this curtailment? The working man; the man with the small home, the man who labors daily and saves for the rainy day. Have you stopped to consider that the man who brought this condition about is a candidate to handle the city affairs? The man who seeks your approval by quoting from Lincoln, the honest man, the fearless leader, and uses the people as his stepping stone to further promotion? Think it over. Figure out your taxes and see if they are not to be increased rather than decreased, and then cast your ballot as your judgment dictates.

The fuelist spirit has broken out in the Virginia mountains and a judge, sheriff and jurors are dead or dying as the result of the attempt to enforce the laws. It is a matter of national importance that these outlaws be captured, killed or properly dealt with. It is a moral lesson Virginia owes to the nation at large.

The attorney general has held that there is no second choice in the primary next Tuesday so the voters, and especially the clerks of the election, can rest in peace that they will not have to work all night figuring out the second choice under the Mary Ann law.

In Janesville we are confronted by the question of how we must choose for mayor and commissioners. Men who have studied the election laws are at sea over the solution. The secretary of state believes the general election law which permits of a second choice, should be observed. The attorney general's office at Madison is doubtful. Senator Whitehead does not think it applies to cities to be governed by a commission. District Attorney Dugwiddle does not believe it applies to Janesville, and laymen

The citizens of Janesville should combine together to save the risk for public use and not have it turned into a commercial business house. Janesville needs just such an exhibition place and hall large enough for large gatherings and it should not be closed to the public.

Champ Clark has won Kansas. Well, that "Horn Dawg" song is worth something after all. Old William Harrison had a campaign slogan years ago that carried him into the presidential chair and perhaps history is to repeat itself again.

The real sentiment of the Roosevelt movement lies directly at Oyster Bay and principally at Sagamore Hill. Think it over carefully and see if it is not true.

Even though it is still winter the question of the summer enjoyment at the Janesville Park association's grounds when warm weather really comes is nice to contemplate.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH.

Under the spreading chestnut tree, the village smithy stands. The smith, a mighty man is he, with large and sinewy hands.

He owns a handsome private yacht and proud seaside chalet. He travels in a private car wherever he may go. His fortune now is reckoned at five million plunks or so.

He doesn't shoe mules any more, or mend the one-horse shay. He makes more in a second now than once he did all day. He merely tinkers touring cars that pass along his way.

FROM THE HICKEYVILLE CLARION.

Tage, Butts tried to imitate an automobile and crunk up his old mule the other day by twisting her tail. When last seen Tage was sailing through the roof of the barn.

There are other things that tend toward longevity just as much as the net of scorchin' around a one-mile track in one minute.

Ansie Purdy says his new 1912 model automobile is already five years behind style.

What has become of the old-fashioned dude who waxed the ends of his mustache and curled his front hair up over his finger?

That New York actress who says she hopes to marry before she dies, better do it, then, if she expects to at all. There's no chance afterward.

A St. Paul man has won a prize for embroidering a lunch cloth. No wonder the women are disgusted and are becoming suffragettes.

One French woman says she prefers an airplane to a husband. And those French husbands by the way, are also high fliers.

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ARNER.

Nobody kin look more innocent than the fellow who hasn't paid his fire.

Between cookin' the meat and washin' the dishes the average woman sort of loses her appetite.

Hank Purdy traded some land he had in the river bottom to Deacon Frisby for a buckskin and a squirrel rifle. The original deal was for forty acres of land, but Hank got a good deal the best of the bargain for the Deacon is some near-sighted and can't read good, and when Hank made out the deed he made it for eighty acres, instead of forty, and all the Deacon will have to do from now on is to pay the taxes.

Andrew Hicks, who has a great head for figures, has got it doped out that every day in this country 15,000 acres of timber is whittled up in sharp-edged lead pencils. Andy has also figured out that if all the automobile tires in the world were hooked together they would reach nine times around the earth and leave room for a bow knot. Andy's wife takes in washin'.

PRESS COMMENT.

A Plea for Cleanliness.

Madison State Journal: Amidst the ebb and flow of medical advance one discovery stands out Gibraltar-like that cleanliness is the cornerstone of health. Cleanliness is today the first demand in work of the physicians. The hospital is the place for the treatment of the sick not merely because of its facilities but because of its cleanliness. Disease is a happy that hovers over dirt. The American cleaned up Havana, and yellow fever, a menace for generations, was wiped out. We cleaned up Panama and the Panama is today healthier than New York. Before the march of cleanliness disease steadily falls back.

The well known definition for dirt is matter out of place. And it is matter out of place that is at the basis of all earthly disorders. A splinter of bone pressing on the brain will send a man to the insane asylum. The smallest leak from a sewage pipe to the water main will spread typhoid fever through a whole community. The poisons deadliest to man have their rightful place but when misplaced, taken into the human system, they cause death.

Order and cleanliness are therefore, in their final analysis, one. And order and cleanliness are the basis of health. Give us clean streets, clean houses, clean food and water, clean clothing, clean bodies and clean thoughts for three generations and disease will disappear from the earth.

Campaign "Dawgeryl"

Rockford Register-Gazette: The discovery that the Ozark song of the "houn' dawg" was current in Illinois for years before it was heard in the Ozarks, and that it was nothing more than a clumsy translation of a German bit of doggerel of the 15th century, has not prevented its timely application to the present campaign. In Missouri democratic convention, in nominating the speaker of the house, reviving it to explain why the democratic congress was screaming the money trust from investigation. Everybody kicks the money trust. Hence the dross of the democratic congressional motto: "You gotta quit kickin' my dawg aroun'."

Janesville in the Field.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The numerous defects which the commission form of government plan has revealed when put to a vote in cities in this state, during the past few weeks, indicates that the friends of this reform have been caught asleep at the switch while its enemies have kept marching on. In the meantime the plan is being adopted by cities in other states and if it keeps up Wisconsin is likely to lose some of its prestige as the state where real reforms make substantial headway.

The Wrong Temperament.

Lawrence, (Kan.) Journal-World: Some La Follette men are making charges against Roosevelt. This will only react. This paper never was for only react. It was always for a man who was a disturber and now it is being proved. La Follette has done a great work, one of the greatest of any work, but his temperament is wrong. He has to rule and if he cannot rule he wants to rule.

HEAVY SNOW STORM INTERRUPTS TRAFFIC

All Trains Arriving Today Delayed—Those From South Have Most Trouble—Rural Mail Carriers Handicapped.

All trains arriving here this morning were delayed by the heavy fall of snow yesterday afternoon and evening which was blown into great drifts across the tracks and filled cuts. The storm was most violent to the south, trains from that direction all being an hour or more late. Some of the freight trains from the north were able to get in but no attempts was made to send any south. The way-freight was not sent out this morning. Passenger trains on both railways were double-headed all day in order to keep their time as close to schedule as possible. The snow was sent south at 4 p. m.

Not much trouble was experienced in maintaining service on the street railway system. The snow was heavy and wet and did not interfere with the transmission of power to the motors. Snow-plows were put to work early this morning and cleaned the right-of-way in a short time.

Rural mail carriers experienced great difficulty in "making" their routes and some of them were compelled to turn back.

A rapid thaw followed the snow storm and Street Commissioner Dan Wilkins and his force of men were compelled to do rapid work cleaning out gutters and hauling away snow in order to prevent flood water from running over walk and into basements.

SECOND CHOICE LAW NOT TO AFFECT THE TUESDAY'S PRIMARY

City Clerk Cummings Receives Word From Secretary of State That To That Effect.

Janesville voters on Tuesday will not have to bother with the second choice of candidates problem. This is the final decision of Attorney General Humber, made known to City Clerk Cummings this morning by Secretary of State Frazar over the telephone. The top of the official opinion being in the hands.

This question of interpreting the new state law relative to the primaries has been a puzzling one for the lawyers connected with the secretary of state's office and the attorney general. Whether Janesville was affected by the law which called for a second choice at the primary was raised during the past few days and City Clerk Cummings made application to Secretary Frazar for definite information. On Thursday Mr. Frazar thought the law affected Janesville, but was not certain and notified the city clerk ask for an opinion from either Senator Whitehead or District Attorney Dunlap, or both, and abide by their rulings. Mr. Cummings did this, and found that they agreed the law did not affect Janesville under the commission form of government.

The state department has been flooded with requests for opinions on various questions concerning elections in different cities and the fact that they reached the Janesville problem as soon as they have been forwarded. This will mean that there is no change in the original plan and that on Tuesday the voters will cast their ballots for one candidate for mayor and for two candidates for city clerk and the two candidates for mayor receiving the highest number of votes and the four candidates for commissioner go on the official ballot at the April election.

City Clerk Cummings received the following letter from Secretary Frazar yesterday which affects other cities that are not under the commission form of government and explains the tangle they are in.

Hon. James A. Frazar:

In your favor of March you request my opinion as to whether first and second choice ballots are to be voted at the primary held in cities of the first class at the spring election, and orally you have today requested that the opinion be extended to cover primaries in cities of all classes.

The first and second choice ballot came into existence by chapter 200 of the laws of 1911 which amended section 11-12, changing the form of the ballot therein provided so as to permit voters for the first and second choices. The form of ballot does not show any city offices, but neither does the form of ballot prescribed by section 11-13 prior to this amendment, although it is clear by section 11-20.4 that the primary law applied to city elections.

Chapter 200 also amended section 11-12.8, re-writing the section and providing the method of making the first and second choice ballots. Section 11-6 was also re-written and provided the manner of counting the ballots. It is significant that the amendment drops out of sub-section 3 thereof the provision that the returns shall be made "to the city clerk if a city primary," and as this sub-section now stands the returns must be delivered to the "county clerk."

Sub-section 11-17, prior to the 1911 amendment provided that the state boards of canvassers provided for general elections should constitute the state board of canvassers of the September primary. As re-written, this section now provides the rules for the guidance of the state and county boards of canvassers in canvassing the first and second choice ballots.

Section 11-20, providing for the canvassing of returns of the city primary and for the filing of such returns with the city clerk, remains unamended. Sub-section 4 of that section provides: "So far as applicable, and not otherwise provided herein, the provisions of this act shall apply to all city primaries." In view of this provision and the fact that the law provides only one form of ballot for use at primaries, and this is the first and second choice form, I am of the opinion that such ballots are to be used at the spring primaries in cities of all classes.

The question is not free from doubt, for the provisions of section 11-17 as to the rules for canvassing first and second choice ballots are made applicable only to state and county boards of canvassers, and section 11-16 requires the returns of first and second choice votes to be delivered to the county clerk. But, as stated, I am of the opinion from a consideration of the whole law that the ballot to be used is that provided by section 11-9 as amended by chapter 200 of the laws of 1911.

Very truly yours,
L. H. HANCOCK.

SEE END OF PEARL BUTTON INDUSTRIES

Pearl buttons from the shells of which buttons are manufactured in large quantities in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and neighboring Mississippi river states are threatened with extinction, according to Fish Commissioner George M. Howers in his annual report issued recently.

"While there has not yet developed any grave stringency in the supply of mussels," says the report, "some of the streams have been depleted to an extent to create concern among both manufacturers and fishermen. Both classes have expressed themselves as favoring some method of regulation of the fishing which will prevent undue waste and destruction of the mussels upon which is dependent the livelihood of many thousands of persons."

Continue Mussel Inquiry.

The staff of the biological station at Fairport, Ill., will continue its investigation of mussel culture. The button industry is extensive and gives employment to many thousands of persons.

BADGER BARLEY LEADS IN NATION

One-Eighth of Crop Raised in United States is Grown in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin leads all states in the Union in the production of barley, producing in fact one-eighth of the crop raised in the United States. The acreage is constantly increasing.

Many farmers in Rock county, who have hitherto raised only a little barley incidentally, are awakening to the fact that there is money in this grain, and are now raising it along with dairying, corn, tobacco, hogs and oats as a revenue-producing source. With many farmers barley has been regarded something like chicken and raised principally for variety but in view of the fact that barley is now commanding a high figure in the market, it promises to take its place among the big things on more and more Wisconsin farms.

According to the United States census there were in 1910 a total of 816,448 acres of barley in Wisconsin and the production in the state was 22,156,041 bushels, or about one-eighth of the total product of the United States. In the same year, there were 3,400 acres devoted to barley in Dane county and the yield in the county was 910,000 bushels. In Dodge county is, however, the heaviest producer in the state and raises more than any other county in the country.

The high standing which barley has taken in the state and which Wisconsin barley especially has taken in the nation, is due in large part to the work done at the agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin. For fifteen years the college has been working to perfect a pedigreed barley that would produce the maximum yield in volume and quantity and has now obtained one that stands the test in both respects.

This pedigreed barley is now producing as high as 60 bushels per acre—a yield equal to that of oats in bushels and as barley is now bringing in the market $1.35 a bushel its profitable character can be readily seen. Seed barley of this variety can be had at from $1.75 to $2 per bushel and it is estimated by the college of agriculture that about 800,000 bushels of this seed barley is available in the state and that this year enough seed barley will be raised in Wisconsin to cover the whole barley acreage in the United States.

It was this pedigreed barley produced at the University of Wisconsin that swept the boards at the recent interstate show in Chicago in competition with grain from all other parts of the country. One Rock county farmer received $350 in premiums and a $1,000 medal for his exhibit.

The Wisconsin barley is of a fine light color and much of it is used for malting purposes. It is also popular for cereals and breakfast foods of various kinds.

Barley can be grown in any part of the state so far as latitude is concerned, but not in all sorts of soils. It requires a fairly rich soil for the best results and sandy soils are not favorable to its successful growth. Larger and larger soil areas favorable to it are being opened year by year in the state.

Showing, to Paraphrase, How One Touch of Powder Makes the Feminine World Kin.

She was going to get off the car a few blocks further on and had a great longing to powder her nose before she alighted so that when she kept her trust with him she should not present a shiny tip. The woman sitting next to her was of the critical sisters, who had looked her up and down from boots to bonnet when she entered the car. The woman with the shiny nose felt certain if she surreptitiously tried to extract her powder bag from her purse and dabble her tip with it the woman at her side would glare horribly. But as her street drew near she determined to risk it anyhow and trust to Providence that a quick dab would accomplish the desired result. She dabbed—blindly and hurriedly. But the woman saw her. She could feel the glare turned in her direction. Then, to her infinite amazement, the woman whipped open her reticule and extracted a small mirror. This she handed to her neighbor with an understanding smile. "Better take it, my dear—there's a job of powder on the left side near your eye." The other woman, in her gratitude, forgave the glare previously administered, and remembered the good old adage, one touch of powder makes the feminine world kin.

PUT END TO FROG-FARMING

Audubon's Scheme Might Have Been Good but for One Small, Unforeseen Incident.

There is an amusing story told in connection with the first venture in frog-farming ever made in the United States.

Early in the last century Audubon, the great ornithologist, went down the Ohio river from Pennsylvania in a little steamer of his own, stopping at various points to obtain specimens of little-known birds.

While at Hendersonville, Kentucky, which he made his home for some time, he built a mill and proposed to raise frogs on a large scale, preparing for that purpose a pond near the river.

The frogs multiplied wonderfully, and on warm summer evenings it was the practice of Audubon to sit under a tree near the pond, listening to the concert given by his stock, and calculating the amount of money he should derive from the sale of the grown frogs.

But one night, when the frogs were nearly grown, they heard the booming of bullfrogs in the Ohio. Their curiosity was aroused, and hopping out of the pond, they made their way to the river, into which they plunged and disappeared!

The streets of London never fail to attract the professional beggar and never disappoint him. The Mendicity society tells us that a beggar can earn more than the wages of the average working man, and that "it is probably no exaggeration to say that well over £100,000 ($500,000) is given away haphazard to beggars in the streets of London every year."

Boy's Bright Idea.

While teaching a class in the second grade, I once asked a little boy to tell what he could about the appearance of an Indian. Intersection Speaking Contest to be Held Tuesday and Interclass Affair After Vacation.

During the opening exercises at the high school this morning Supt. H. C. Buell announced the program for the extemporaneous speaking as far as he knew it. The speakers have already run off their trials and the intersection speaking contest will take place on Tuesday afternoon, March 19th, at which the speakers who will represent the classes will be chosen. The interclass debate, however, will not be held until after the spring vacation, which comes on March 23rd and lasts through the first week of April.

The freshman contest will have to be held soon, though it has not been decided whether they will decline before or after vacation. There are fifteen who have declared their intention of entering the race for the Loomis declamatory medal. This promises to be an interesting contest and a great deal of enthusiasm is being aroused by the prospect.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

Some Helps For Housekeepers.

A CERTAIN woman had used a gas range for all her cooking for some years. But she never thought to slip a newspaper over the drip-pan under the burners until a friend told her to do so. She had carefully scrubbed this drip-pan every morning, for food will boil over or get spilled, and the drip-pan always seemed to be dirty. Now she simply slips the newspaper out and burns it. And she doesn't need to scrub the pan often any more, and it is clean and shining.

Newspapers are very useful things anyway about a kitchen. If you cook with a fire that smokes, if you will rub the bottom of the pan or pot with paper, nearly all the smut can be rubbed off. And this is much easier than washing it off, and having pan and dishcloth black.

If greasy pans and pots are wiped out with pieces of newspaper before washing, their washing will be easier.

Soft muslin covers that can be quickly fastened over brooms or long handled brushes, for wiping up hard wood floors, or cleaning walls or curtains are time-savers. If these are made so they can be fastened quickly and securely, they are more economical of time, in the long run, than is the piece of old cloth that is tied on over the broom or brush haphazard. This is continually coming off, and not being made to fit, doesn't half do its work. If the cover that is used for wiping up the floor is dipped in kerosene oil and thoroughly wrung out, it takes up the dust better and makes the floors look brighter.

If potatoes are boiled before frying, boil them with the jackets on. After boiling, the jackets can be taken off with less waste and more quickly than can the potatoes be peeled before boiling.

If you will rub the gas-range while it is hot with a piece of soft cloth or old newspaper, the range will always be clean. Keep handy a rag that will absorb grease, or a piece of newspaper, and once a day when the range is warm, wipe it off, and it will be bright and clean, and only need a general overhauling now and then. For this general overhauling, wipe off the grease and dirt with a cloth that has been dipped in kerosene oil, and clean out the holes in the burners with a pin or some such instrument.

You can save some of the labor of ironing by placing the sheets folded on your ironing board, and ironing other plain things on them. The home of the sheets may need ironing, but the rest of the sheet has been ironed by proxy.

If the housekeeper who wants to make the asparagus "go" as far as possible, will cut the stalks into small lengths and put the hard portions into a steamer well in advance of the tips and softer parts, she will find that these hard portions will become as tender as string beans, and that every bit of the asparagus can be eaten.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MOST of us are continually regretting something in our past. I don't mean actually suffering from remorse, but simply realizing that we might have acted much more wisely. It is strange that we do not more often reflect that we are making a new past, even at the very moment of our regrets, and probably making it no more wisely than we did before.

By your leave, I'll take my own case for an instance. My besetting sin is hurryhug. I have always hurried too much, tried to crowd too much into my days. I look back over my past and I say: "How foolish I was; how much better off I should have been if I had not tried to do so much. How much happier and healthier I should be today if I had not hurried so. And so few of the things I did were vital I might have left out half of them and not affected my happiness or welfare at all." And yet, when I stop to think, I realize that I am hurryhug today. This year, this month, this very day I am making a past of which I shall probably say much the same thing ten years from now.

I look over all my activities and say: "But all these are vital. I could not spare any of them." I remember ten years ago I said the same thing when anyone warned me that I was trying to do too much.

That is my personal experience. I tell you about that because it is the one with which I am the most familiar, that does it not that a parallel in your own life? Perhaps your besetting sin is not planning far enough ahead. You look back and say: "If I had planned my life wisely and methodically five years ago, how much better off I might be today." True, my friend, but very unimportant today, you will be much farther ahead five years from now.

Perhaps the weakest point in your character is procrastination. "Ah," you bewail, as you look back five or ten years, "if I only hadn't put off taking that course in advertising, I might have as good a position as I today. I know I have just as much brains as he." Come back, my friend, come back to the present past, and look into your life, and see what you are procrastinating now.

Experience is a good teacher, but we are all poor scholars. The past of five years ago is unimportant compared with the past you are making now. If we could only look at this present past with the unprejudiced, clear-sighted eyes which we turn on the buried past, how differently we should live.

Perhaps such detachment is impossible, but surely we might take more interest in this vital past which we are making now and which we have a chance to influence than in that unimportant dead past, which no regrets can change.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Cooking Does Not Remedy the Faults of Unwholesome Oysters.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

The oyster was recently referred to as almost as dangerous as it is delicious. Unfortunately the flippant sounding statement has a great deal of truth in it for neither appearance or taste indicate whether the oyster was fattened in a sewer bed or made its home in uncontaminated waters.

If the buyer could be assured of the source of the oysters it would be well but at present this is rarely possible. The fashion of eating raw oysters has gone out to a great extent because of many reported cases of illness produced by unwholesome bivalves.

It is more and more understood that cooking oysters does not always render them harmless. When steamed or cooked in stews they are not digestible if allowed to go beyond the point when the oyster has just begun to open. The portion of the oyster that is inner portion of the oyster is not heated sufficiently to kill harmful germs.

In trying the condition is about the same so that, unless in an overdone condition, the oyster if once dangerous remains so to some degree after cooking.

buttered baking dish. Bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Another tasty luncheon dish in which a little meat makes a great show requires but one cup of chopped cooked meat of any kind. Mix it with one beaten egg, one-quarter cup of cracker crumbs and two table-spoons of hot water.

Butter a round or oval dish and line it with boiled rice. Put the meat in, cover with rice and steam half an hour. Turn onto a heated platter and pour a tomato sauce round it. One cup of rice will be sufficient if plenty of water, drained and shaken dry over the fire.

For a tomato sauce put two cups of canned tomato in a sauce pan with two rounding table-spoons of finely minced onion. Simmer fifteen minutes and press through a strainer. If there are not two cups fill the measure with hot water, add two rounding table-spoons of flour rubbed smooth with the same amount of butter and cook ten minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Remnants of cold boiled fish and potato make an excellent salad. Flake the fish and cut the potatoes into very thin slices. Chop two small sweet pickles fine and mix with the fish and potato. Season the whole with salt and pepper and form into a mound on a salad dish then cover with a coating of mayonnaise.

The housekeeper who was thrifty enough to store some cranberries, when they were cheap in jars of cold water now finds that they furnish the acid craved by the spring appetite. The price now paid at the market for cranberries is about eighteen cents a quart in most localities.

For an open pie chop one and one-half cups of cranberries and add one cup of sugar. Put two level table-spoons of cornstarch in a cup, add enough cold water to make smooth then fill the cup with boiling water and cook until it thickens. Add the berries and sugar, a pinch of salt and a level tablespoon of butter cut in bits. Turn into a paste lined plate and lay strips of the paste across in lattice fashion then bake.

The KITCHEN CABINET

MEN and women who "get their heads" have edited beliefs and convictions. The pilot of an ocean steamer would make poor headway if he gave up the beliefs by which he must direct that ship.

RICE COMBINATIONS.

When well cooked is no easy digestion, so nourishing and wholesome that it seems poor economy to use so much of other starchy foods and neglect the rice, which forms the chief food of so many millions on the other side of the globe.

For the main dish of a meal it can be combined with veal, chicken, and other meats in the form of croquette or scalloped dishes, with tomatoes and curry, with cheese. Another is a very nice dish of hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths and put into buttered baking dish with a layer of cold cooked rice first, then a few spoonfuls of thick white sauce, a sprinkling of cheese and seasonings and a layer of eggs. Finish with buttered crumbs, and bake until thoroughly hot. This is a dish sufficiently filling for a main dish. Five hard-boiled eggs, two cups of rice and a cup of white sauce, seasoning and a little grated cheese will be enough to serve five.

For supper or luncheon dishes there is nothing for a light meal more appropriate than plain boiled rice with rich milk.

Desserts of rice with eggs and milk make most appetizing dishes. Rice and milk baked with dates and raisins and served with cream is another good dessert.

A Spanish dish, using red peppers, rice and any bits of cold meat cut in small pieces, a layer of rice and a sprinkling of onion, then a layer of meat and tomatoes made hot with fresh red peppers. Cover all with a few green peas and serve in the baking dish.

Rice a la Nistone.—Finely chop two thin slices of bacon; add to one-half of a medium-sized cabbage, finely chopped, cover and cook slowly thirty minutes. Add a fourth of a cup of boiled rice, one-half teaspoon of minced parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with one-half cup of white stock, either chicken or veal broth and cook fifteen minutes.

Turkish pilaf is another dish liked by many. Cook a half cup of well-washed rice in a tablespoonful of butter until it is brown and the water is absorbed. Add three-fourths of a cup of tomatoes and cook until the rice is soft. Season and serve.

FOOD FOR HEAT AND ENERGY.

Not less than 80 per cent. of the solid part of our food should be that which supports combustion, maintaining heat and muscular energy. This is taken as fat or oil, starch or sugar. A certain percentage of fat is necessary for the best nutrition. The consumption of olive oil has increased rapidly during the past few years. It is not generally known that peanut fat, as in the uncooked nut or in peanut butter in which fatty acid has not been developed by excessive dry roasting, is equal, if not superior, in nutritive quality to olive oil, being assimilated with wonderful facility, as the extreme degree of its solubility in water would indicate.

There are serious objections to cereal starch as the major element of food, which it now is in the dietary of the American people. The potato, especially if baked, is much to be preferred to fine white bread, and rice is far superior to the ordinary cereals as a source of carbon.

Sugars are the most easily assimilated of foods (including honey), and fruit sugar should be substituted for a large part of our cereal food, cane sugar being inferior. And the best sources of fruit sugar are the ripe banana, figs, dates and prunes.

MRS. MARION LINES

FLIES MEXICAN BANDITS IN NIGHT.

Oakland, Cal.—Twice within a year Mrs. Mary Lines, an American woman residing in Mexico has been forced to escape at midnight from Mexican bandits in the interior of the state of Sinaloa. This fact has just become known through letters received here by her aunt, Mrs. John Hayden.

On the occasion of her first escape, during the rebellion of last winter, Mrs. Lines was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. H. Towner, a sister of Mrs. Hayden. The two women were placed on a handcar manned by four Mexican friends of Stirling Lines, husband of Mrs. Lines, and conveyed to the coast, a distance of 25 miles.

The second escape was effected a short time ago by a special car and engine sent up from the coast by the Southern Pacific company, through the trip was made in fear of burned bridges or destroyed roadbed. On this trip Mrs. Lines was accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Grace Towner of Toledo, Ohio, and her ten-year-old daughter, Caroline Towner, with ten other American women and several small children. The party has just reached Los Angeles.

"SIR" HARRY WESTWOOD COOPER

DAISY CLIMM

FORGER-DIGAM 1ST SOUGHT.

"Sir" Harry Westwood Cooper's appalling career of forgery and bigamy, covering twenty years and involving six innocent women, took on new life today when it became known that before fleeing from Oakland he forged a marriage certificate, induced Rev. Edward L. Parsons, of the fashionable St. Mark's Church, in Berkeley, to perform the ceremony, and they left on the Santa Luita, with Miss Anna Milbrath, 25 years of age, and the daughter of devoted parents in Oakland, as his sixth bride.

Miss Milbrath left her home at 1002 Sixty-third street to Oakland with "Dr. Abraham" in a closed cab, taking with her the parental blessing, an elaborate trousseau and $1,000 in cash that her mother had borrowed for the wedding. They were to go straight East from Puget Sound and take a steamer at New York for Egypt, where "Dr. Abraham's" mother had been killed in an accident. On their way the doctor was to sit in at the winding up of several large English estates to which he was heir.

At the very time when Cooper, alias "Chudwick" alias Abraham, was trying to cash a bogus draft for $15,000 in Oakland and threatening suicide unless he won the hand of Miss Daisy Climm, superintendent of nurses in an Oakland hospital, he was perfecting the details of his marriage to the innocent Miss Milbrath.

"Give me a shave and a clean collar and I'll win any woman in the world," "Sir" Harry used to tell his fellow prisoners in San Quentin. And Miss Climm is about the only woman who can give him the lie.

"I can't imagine how Anna allowed herself to be fooled," she said. "Dr. Abraham proposed to me for the last time on the very morning of the wedding, and Anna knew that he was making love to me. She was madly infatuated with him."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE DEFENSE OF GIBRALTAR.

By A. W. MACY.

For centuries the Rock of Gibraltar has been a synonym for strength. Near it in the eighth century landed Tarik, the first Saracen invader of Spain. The Moors held it till 1462, when it was captured by the Spaniards, Charles V. fortified it, but in 1704 it was taken by combined English and Dutch forces under Sir Edward Roke. The Spaniards and French united in besieging it, but failed. The Spaniards tried again without success in 1727. It seemed impregnable, and no further attempt was made for more than half a century. In 1779 it was again closely invested, by a combined army of Spaniards and Frenchmen. The siege lasted three years, and immense preparations were made for a final assault in 1783. The Spaniards threatened for revenge. Many schemes of attack were proposed, and finally one was accepted which contemplated a combined attack by both land and sea, and included a stupendous array of floating batteries, which were to discharge red hot cannon balls. Thousands of spectators assembled to witness the fall of the stronghold, but they were disappointed. For days hundreds of cannon belched forth their shot and shell, but the little English garrison repelled with such spirit that the floating batteries and many of the attacking ships were destroyed. Gibraltar proved impregnable, and remains an English possession to this day.

Systematic Writing.

All busy women know the value of system, and every busy woman should systematize her daily tasks.

In the matter of letter writing many women are great procrastinators. They persistently leave important letters unanswered until the last possible moment, and then have to write a hurried note, often forgetting to take up important subjects for discussion.

The best way to do is to have one day or evening set apart for weekly letter writing. One woman reserves Tuesday morning for this purpose, and she allows none but the most pressing duties to interfere with her writing.

While reading a letter she will jot down any particular thing she wants to mention in the reply on the back of the envelope, places it in the letter rack on her desk and when Tuesday comes has all the week's correspondence ready for answering before her. If during the interim of the receipt and answering of a letter she thinks of any point she wished discussed, that, too, is noted on the envelope.

With this system letter writing is a real pleasure—one that is looked forward to every week with keen interest.

Petroleum in Venezuela.

There are five known petroleum deposits in Venezuela. Oozings of petroleum, covering a considerable territory, are found in the district of Mara, near the River Limon asphalt lake. Oil has been located at Bella Vista, near the city of Maracibo, and wells are to be sunk by the owners in the near future.

Love and Sacrifice.

Genuine love with its sacrifices gives the holiest joy and its pain is not pain, for it carries no regret.

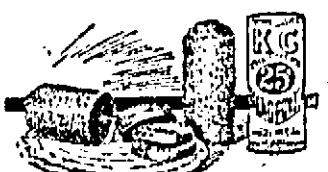

Eskimo Wife Useful.
Eskimo widowers often marry again within a week after the demise of the wife. The helpmate of the savage does most of the work, and he is almost helpless without her. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up her husband's kill and carries it to camp. She dresses the skins of deer and seal. She makes the footgear and clothes, paddles the canoe and carries every burden. Without her no domestic arrangement can go forward.

ATLANTIC AIRSHIP IS READY FOR TEST

Dirigible Balloon Suchard, Constructed Especially for Flight Across Ocean Will Make Start Soon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Berlin, March 15.—Everything is practically in readiness at the Johannisthal aviation grounds near this city for the trial flights of the dirigible airship Suchard which is soon to undertake the hazardous task of making a flight across the Atlantic ocean, from Tenerife to the West Indies. Dr. Paul H. Gans, the scientific head of the undertaking, who is to be in command during the trans-Atlantic flight, Joseph Brucker, the business manager of the enterprise and the members of the prospective crew are on the spot, ready for the first trial flight, which is awaited with great interest by the public in general and the dirigible-enthusiasts in particular.

The dirigible balloon Suchard, which has been built especially for this trans-oceanic flight, was completed last fall, but after its completion it was found advisable to make alterations and rearrangements, which made it impossible to carry out the original plan of making the flight before the beginning of winter. If the trial flights during the next few days should be successful, the balloon and its attachments will be packed without delay and shipped to the Canary Islands. The start is to be made from Tenerife at the earliest opportunity.

The Suchard is a non-rigid dirigible of the Parosval type, 250 feet long and 51 feet in greatest diameter. It is equipped with three powerful engines of the type used in the Parosval. Each one is capable of developing 110 horsepower and weighs about 800 pounds. They can be operated independently and are to be used only as auxiliaries, to keep the airship in its course. The balloon will depend for its propulsion almost entirely upon the trade winds, which, at this time of the year, blow steadily from the Canary Islands toward the West Indian archipelago.

Dr. Gans and his friends are confident that the flight can be made safely at this time of the year and that it will take about four or five days after the start from Tenerife to reach some of the West Indian Islands. The danger of gas leakage, which would make it impossible for the big balloon to remain in the air so long, has been materially diminished, in the opinion of Dr. Gans by the coating of the balloon, which will absorb moisture from the atmosphere, thus protecting the enclosed gas from the heat of the sun and consequent excessive expansion. The balloon will be ballasted with sea water of which a sufficient supply will be carried, to sprinkle the balloon during the hottest time of the day. Under the bag is a gallery for sleeping quarters and below that will be suspended a powerboat that can be quickly cut loose in case of accident. The powerboat is intended as the main living quarters of the six men of the crew.

The motors drive two two-bladed propellers of the Parosval type which make only 400 revolutions a minute. It is planned to run the motors alternately during the day and depend altogether upon the trade wind at night. According to the present plan the voyage is to be made in a height of 500 to 600 feet. The dirigible will be steered by an ordinary vertical rudder and for the purpose of rising, descending and balancing large fins, like airplanes, will be used. The steering is to be done by compass and to enable the navigator of the craft to judge of the heavy, bright red hollow aluminum balls will be dropped from time to time. The expedition will carry a liberal supply of these balls. Owing to the fact that the engine will run alternately and only during part of the day, the quantity of benzine used will be trifling, which is rather important, as it would be impossible to carry a large supply of that fuel.

Of course, owing to the difficulty of holding a definite course in a balloon or airship steered by compass only, Dr. Gans is unable to tell where his craft is going to land. The general course will be in the direction of the Caribbean Islands and Dr. Gans intends to make a landing on the first island or part of the mainland which the balloon should reach. The airship is equipped with a wireless apparatus and can signal at a distance of 150 miles.

STATE BANKS HAVE INCREASED ASSETS

Quarterly Report of Commissioner of Banking Shows Large Increase in Business.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 15.—With total assets on Feb. 29 of $194,075,851.27 state and mutual savings banks and trust companies of Wisconsin reported an aggregate increase of $8,510,784.79 in the past ten weeks, according to the quarterly report of Commissioner of Banking Albert E. Knott today. Equally noticeable is the increase of $507,000 in capital stock in the same period, due to the capitalization of nine newly-incorporated banks.

The total loans and discounts on Feb. 29 were $127,201,141.12, an increase of $2,681,654.74 over the preceding quarter. Overdrafts show a decrease of $79,990.04, bonds an increase of $1,621,142.34, and amount due from reserve banks an increase of $3,382,177.10.

Total liabilities show a gain of $9,768,380.20. A decrease of $350,298.50 in bills payable shows that the banks borrowed from each other during the three months ending Dec. 5 that much more than they were compelled to borrow in the quarter ending Feb. 29 last, indicating that the banks are now in a position where but little money need be borrowed to maintain their reserves. The item of undivided profits shows a decrease of $1,259,285.16. As the majority of banks hold their annual meetings in January and distribute the yearly dividends at that time, this large decrease in this report represents in part earnings on stock paid to stockholders. It is not to be understood, however, that this amount of over a million dollars, is a fair criterion of dividends paid during the year.

The items in resources showing a decrease during the quarter total $410,180.45, and those in liabilities aggregate $1,688,684.87.

NOT SALTS, OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No odds how sick your Stomach; how hard your head aches or how Bilious—Cascarets make you feel great.

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months! Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never grip or sicken.

THE WAY OF A MAN

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1911, by the Oosting Publishing Company

"I looked up into that strange face—the face of my enemy. I knew it was the face of a murderer, a man who would have no compunction at taking a human life. My mind then was strangely clear. I saw his glance at the girl. I saw, as clearly as though he had told me, that this man was as deeply in love with Ellen Meriwether as I myself; that he would win her if he could; that his chance was as good as mine, even if we were both at our best. I knew there was nothing at which he would hesitate, unless some strange freak in his nature might influence him. Remorse, mercy, pity, I knew did not exist for him. But with a flash it came to my mind that this was all the better, if he must now serve as my surgeon."

He looked into my eyes, and I returned his gaze, according to ask him not to take advantage of me, now that I was fallen. His own eye changed. It asked of me, as though he spoke: "Are you, then, game to the core? Shall I admire you and give you another chance, or shall I kill you now?" I say that I saw, felt, read all this in his mind. I looked up into his face and said:

"You cannot kill me. I am not going to die. Go on. Soon, then."

A sort of sigh broke from his lips, as though he felt content. I do not think it was because he found his foe a worthy one. I do not think he considered me either as his foe or his friend or his patient. He was simply about to do something which would cost him his own nerve, his own resources, something which, if successful, would allow him to approve his own belief in himself. I said to myself that I would pay him if he brought me through—pay him in some way.

I heard him on the sand again, and I saw him come again and bend over me. All the instruments they could find had been a razor and a keen penknife; and all they could secure to stretch the blood was some water, nearly boiling. For perhaps Orme had a pair of bullet molds, and these he cleaned as best he could by dipping them into the hot water.

"Cowards," he said, in a matter of fact voice. "I'm going after it. But now I tell you one thing frankly, it's life or death, and if you move your hand it may mean death at once. That iron lying against the big carotid artery. If it hasn't broken the artery wall there's a ghost of a chance we can get it out safely, in which case you would probably pull through. I've got to open the neck and reach in. I'll do it as fast as I can. Now, I'm not going to think of you, and, good—if you can help it, please don't think of me."

Ellen Meriwether still held my head in her lap.

"Are you game—can you do this, Miss Meriwether?" I heard Orme ask. I felt her hands press my head more lightly. I turned my face down and blessed her hand. "I will not move," I said.

I saw Orme's slender, gaited wrist pass to my face and gently turn me into the position desired, with my face down and a little at one side, resting in her lap above her knees. Her skirt was already wet with the blood of the wound, and where my head lay it was damp with blood. He knelt by my head and pulled them above my head, aquating beyond me. Unknown to the girl, I kissed the hem of her garment, and then I said a short appeal to the Mystery.

I felt the entrance of the knife or razor blade, felt keenly the pain when the edge lifted and stretched the skin tight before the tough hide of my neck parted smoothly in a long line. Then I felt something warm settle under my cheek as I lay, and I felt a low shiver, whether of my body or that of the girl who held me I could not tell, but her hands were steady. I felt about me an infinite kindness and carefulness and pitying—oh, then I learned that life, after all, is not wholly war—that there is such a thing as fellow suffering and loving kindness and a wish to aid others to survive in this hard fight of living. I knew that very well. But I did not gain it from the touch of my surgeon's hands.

The immediate pain of this long cutting which laid open my neck for some inches through the side muscles was less after the point of the blade went through and ceased to push forward. Deeper down I did not feel so much until finally a gentle searching movement produced a far strangely large, something that grated and nearly sent all the world black again. I knew then that the knife was on the bone of the arrow head; then I could feel it move softly and gently along the side of the arrow head. I could almost see it creep along in this delicate part of the work.

Then all at once I felt one hand removed from my neck. Orme, half rising from his stooping posture, but with the fingers of his left hand still at the hair, now becoming follower and more subdued at the ends, was piled under her felt hat, and the modishness of long cylindrical curls was quite forgotten. The brown of her cheeks, already strongly sunburned, showed in strange contrast to the snowy whiteness of her neck, now exposed by the low neck aperture of the Indian tunic.

"You stand all this while," I commented presently.

"Ah, you men—I love you, you men!" She said it suddenly and with perfect sincerity. "I love you all—you are so strong, so full of the desire to live, to win. It is wonderful, wonderful! Just look at those poor boys there—some of them are dying, almost, but they don't whimper. It is wonderful."

"It is the pluck," I said. "They have simply learned how little a thing is life."

"Yet it is sweet," she said.

"You were four different women," I mused, "and now you are another, quite another."

At this she frowned a bit and rose. "You are not to talk," she said. "For think that you are well. I must see the others."

I lay back against the wagon bed, wondering in which part she had been most beautiful—the dimly half-dressed and the mocking mask, the gray gown and veil of the day after, the thin drapery of her lacy night in the night before—or this, the girl of some primal woman. I knew I could never forget her again. The thought gave me pain, and perhaps this showed on my face, for my eyes followed her so that presently she turned and came back to me.

"Does the wound hurt you?" she asked. "Are you in pain?"

"Yes, Ellen Meriwether," I said. "I am in pain. I am in very great pain."

"Oh," she cried, "I am sorry. What can we do? But perhaps it will not be so bad after awhile. It will be over soon."

"No, Ellen Meriwether," I said. "It will not be over soon. It will not go away at all."

CHAPTER XI.

Gordon Orme, Magician.

WE lay in our hot camp on the sandy valley for some days and buried two more of our men, who finally succumbed to their wounds. Gloom sat on us all, for never now raged among our wounded. The sun blistered us, the night froze us. Still not a sign of any white topped wagon from the east nor any dust cloud of troopers from the west served to break the monotony of the whithering waste that lay about us on every hand. We were growing gaunt now and haggard, but still we lay waiting for our men to grow strong enough to travel or to lose all strength and so be laid away.

"Injuns is strange critters. A few of us has married among injuns and lived among them, and we have seen things you wouldn't believe if I told you," Tim spoke Auberry.

"Tell some of them," said Orme. "I, for one, might believe them."

"Well, now," said the plainsman, "I will tell you some things I have seen their medicine men do, and you can believe me or not, the way you feel about it."

"I have seen 'em hold a powwow for two or three days at a time, some of 'em settin' round dreamin', as they call it, all of 'em starvin', whole camp howlin', everybody eatin' medicine herbs. Then after while they all come and set down just like it was right out here in the open. Somebody pulls a naked injun boy right out in the middle of them. Old Mr. Medicine Man, he stands up in the plain daylight, and he draws his bow and shoots an arrow plumb through that boy. Boy squeals a heap and Mr. Medicine Man seeks another arrow through him, cool as you please—I have seen that done. Then the medicine man steps up, cuts off the boy's head with his knife—holds it up plain so everybody can see it. That looked pretty hard to me first time I ever seen it. But now the old medicine man takes a blanket and throws it over this dead boy. He lifts up a corner of the blanket, checks the boy's head under it and pulls down the edges of the blanket and pulls rocks on them. Then he begins to sing, and the whole bunch gets up and dances 'round the blanket. After awhile, say a few minutes, medicine men pulls off the blanket and their guts up the boy, good as new, his head grown on good and tight as ever and not a sign of an arrow on him 'cept the scars where the wounds has plumb healed up!"

Feminine Curiosity.

Little Eleanor's pretty cousin wore a new engagement ring, and the budding woman regarded the ring and the giver alike with reverent eyes. One night when the happy man has been invited to Eleanor's home for dinner, Eleanor, unconsciously gushing, burst forth with: "Oh, Mr. Blank, do please tell me, in all the love stories I've read the men propose so sudden. When it's coming on, does it—does it feel anything like a sneeze?"

Reflection on Cholly.

Cholly (handing his friend's revolver glancingly)—"I suppose now if this should go off while I'm holding it like this it would blow my brains out?" His friend—"No, it wouldn't do that, but it would bore a hole clean through your head."

hair, now becoming follower and more subdued at the ends, was piled under her felt hat, and the modishness of long cylindrical curls was quite forgotten. The brown of her cheeks, already strongly sunburned, showed in strange contrast to the snowy whiteness of her neck, now exposed by the low neck aperture of the Indian tunic.

"You stand all this while," I commented presently.

"Ah, you men—I love you, you men!" She said it suddenly and with perfect sincerity. "I love you all—you are so strong, so full of the desire to live, to win. It is wonderful, wonderful! Just look at those poor boys there—some of them are dying, almost, but they don't whimper. It is wonderful."

"It is the pluck," I said. "They have simply learned how little a thing is life."

"Yet it is sweet," she said.

"You were four different women," I mused, "and now you are another, quite another."

At this she frowned a bit and rose. "You are not to talk," she said. "For think that you are well. I must see the others."

SOTHERN'S SMILELESS CURTAIN CALLS.

Should an actor smile when taking a curtain call? That is the question that has been agitating New York theatre goers. The rumormongers with a letter in the New York Herald—the correspondent complaining that E. H. Sothern never smiles when he comes before the curtain to take a call. One letter-writer said:

"We have quite enough, it seems to me, of the grinning and smiling actor. It is evident that Mr. Sothern holds his audience in due respect; that he is perfectly willing to leave to our musical comedy and comic opera comedians all the joy that they are able to get out of burlesque and monologues. When it becomes necessary in the play Mr. Sothern can smile, and most engagingly."

Finally, the Herald went around a reporter to get Mr. Sothern's views on the subject. Here is what he had to say:

"I can assure you that I feel greatly flattered that all this attention should be paid to me," said Mr. Sothern, and he said it with an engaging smile. He had just completed a performance of 'Macbeth,' and the smile was not easy to distinguish underneath the paint and 'makeup.'

"Since reading the letters, however, I have given the matter a little thought—you know everything that we do we have a reason for doing, and I never smile in acknowledging curtain calls, there is a reason. The only thing is that I never had thought until reading the several letters in the Herald to question myself inwardly for the reason I have arrived at a conclusion."

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

The Paralytic Forgiven and Healed, Mark 1:1-12.

Golden Text—Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits, who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases. Ps. 103:2-3.

(1) Verse 1—How long will an earnest Christian be in a shop, store or community before it is "blessed that he is in the house?"

(2) Verse 2—Was Christ's person, his teaching or his miracles that attracted the crowd?

(3) What are the attractions in this community which draw the biggest crowds?

(4) If a preacher lives in close contact with God will he be certain in a populous community to attract the crowd? Why or why not?

(5) If Jesus were to come here to reside and preach the same doctrine as in those days would he be popular with the average church member? Why?

(6) Verse 3—Of how much benefit is it in these days to bring our sick ones to Jesus?

(7) How would you characterize one who did nothing to comfort the sick, relieve the poor or help people in their trouble?

(8) Which more nearly imitate Jesus in caring for the sick, the churches or the societies? Give your reasons.

(9) Verse 4—If we are fully determined to have the members of our families saved by Jesus what can prevent us?

(10) What qualities do you most admire in these four men for their insistence in bringing their sick friend to Jesus?

(11) Verse 5—Which is the more commendable and why, a palsied body or a palsied soul?

(12) What relation had the faith of these four men with the forgiveness of the sins of the sick man?

(13) How long does it take God to forgive the sins of a man who is really penitent?

(14) Verses 6-7—Does Jesus here state that he forgives this man's sins or that God had forgiven him?

(15) If any man of God is assured that a sinner of salvation is truly penitent, why may he not pronounce to him that his sins are forgiven? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(16) Verse 8—Was mind reading peculiar to Jesus, or have others a similar gift? Give your reasons.

(17) Verses 9-12—The healing of this sick man was clearly a miracle. Was the forgiveness of his sins also a miracle?

I am in favor of setting aside a small portion of the general taxes, if possible, or otherwise create a fund, whereby we can induce outside factories, that employ skilled labor, to locate here, and use this fund to pay their taxes, say for a certain period, and help to locate factory sites; by so doing we will increase the population of this city, increase the value of real estate, etc.

My dwellings in this city for the last ten years speaks best of my honesty and ability.

Animals That Count.

There are human beings, such as inhabitants of the Murray Islands in the Straits of Torres, that cannot count further than two. But, most surprising still, most animals possess calculating abilities, and several have a distinct appreciation of number. In certain mines of Hattumut, the horses are so used to traversing the same road thirty times that after their last round they go to the stable of their own accord and refuse to take another step. Montaigne says that the oxen employed in the royal gardens of Spain for turning the wheels to which the water mills were attached absolutely refused to make more than 100 rounds, which constituted their daily task.

METZ TWENTY-TWO

The Metz 1912 runabout is constructed along scientific lines. The keynote of construction is simplicity. That it is more economical on gasoline and lubricating oil than any car in or near the same class. That its light weight makes it easier on tires, and insures a tire mileage of approximately 10,000 miles, are facts that will be seriously considered by all buyers of motor cars in the future.

While some can afford the enormous upkeep expense of a cumbersome touring car, the great majority of people will, from now on, buy the high-powered, low-priced runabouts.

This car affords the best means of locomotion for the business man, who, regardless of his trade, finds it necessary to be transported quickly and economically from one point to another.

For the physician it is the ideal car. To the doctor who is depending on horses or heavy automobiles as a means of transportation, this car will be a revelation.

The high power, coupled with the light weight permits practically all grades to be negotiated on the high speed.

The price of the car includes full equipment without additional charge—HIGH TENSION MAGNETO, TOP, SLIP OVER COVER, GAS LAMPS AND GENERATOR, DASH LAMPS, TAIL LIGHT, HORN, SET OF TOOLS, AND TIRE PUMP WITH COMPLETE TIRE OUTFIT, at the advertised price of $495.

MOTOR

The motor has four cylinders, cast-in-block, with removable water-jacketed cylinder head, permitting free access to the combustion chamber, pistons, cylinders and valves, thus securing lightness, compactness, and more satisfactory water-jacketing. To remove the cylinder head is the work of but a few minutes. Valves may be ground, and carbon removed from the combustion chamber with consummate ease. This construction has been very largely used in Europe and is now being adopted by a number of American manufacturers.

The crank shaft is made of the best crank shaft steel obtainable, specially heat treated, insuring a wide margin of strength and toughness.

The crank shaft bearings are made of superior bearing metal with ample bearing surface.

The crank case is of aluminum, the lower half of which is cast integral with the oil reservoir.

The valve push rods and springs are entirely enclosed, thus excluding road dust and grit, which is as destructive to the working parts, as well as eliminating the throwing of oil, which is common in many motors.

COOLING.

Cooling is by means of water through thermosiphon system throughout the jackets and cylinders, and thence to the vertical tube radiator. We use a radiator liberal in size, and of the highest grade, which insures proper cooling under all conditions.

LUBRICATION

Our constant level splash-oiling system is the simplest as well as the most efficient that has ever been installed in a motor. The lower half of the crank case is so constructed that the bottom section forms an oil reservoir and on the side of the crank case are oil ducts which distribute the oil to the pockets directly beneath each connecting rod. The oil is carried from this reservoir to these ducts by means of a geared pump, which is positive in its action, and does not depend upon suction or other unreliable means for action. There is always more oil than necessary supplied to each of the connecting rod pockets, but the overflow level permits the oil to return to the reservoir. By this system of lubrication all of the motor parts are supplied with the proper amount of fresh oil, and there is no waste or disagreeable smoke from over lubrication. The lubricating system requires no attention other than the occasional replenishment of oil. A single filling should run 150 miles.

The bearing boxes in the motor are cast with an oil well, which is filled at all times, and which insures the proper lubrication of the bearings under all conditions.

IGNITION

The ignition system consists of the high tension type, and the motor is equipped with the highest grade magneto obtainable, thus eliminating coil boxes and trembler parts which are usually a source of trouble and annoyance to the operator. With the high tension system, the current is direct from the magneto to the spark plug. No rectifier or better type of magneto than we are using is procurable at any price.

TRANSMISSION.

The friction drive transmission is the simplest and most easily cared for drive known for this work. It is efficient, simple, durable, and most important of all, will do the work required of it. By the use of this device we eliminate all clash gears, live rear axles, and many troublesome features which go to make up what is known as the shaft drive, thus eliminating entirely the question of soft or brittle driving gears, and broken or defective rear axles, which cause endless road troubles, as well as heavy repair bills.

The propeller shaft from the engine to the fibre disc is run on ball bearings of large dimensions and forms a straight line drive from the motor to the jack shaft. The final drive is from the jack shaft to the rear sprockets by chains running in oil, which are completely enclosed in chain cases.

The housings being of light ensure perfect lubrication and prevent road dust or foreign matter getting into chains, thus eliminating entirely the wear and tear as well as the noise of chains running exposed and without protection.

The high quality chains used on Metz Cars under these conditions are practically indestructible. Leading engineers and many prominent European as well as American manufacturers acknowledge the great advantage of chain drive by adopting them for their highest priced cars.

CARBURETOR

The motor is equipped with one of the best known and most reliable carburetors it is possible to obtain on the American market.

SPRINGS

The car is equipped with full elliptic springs all around, which give that resiliency and easy riding motion so highly desired in motor cars.

CONTROL.

The left-hand side is now considered the safest, most practical and most convenient side for the driver's seat. While there are many advantages in driving on the left-hand side of the car, the principal one is perhaps the fact that under the regulations adopted in all large cities, and many smaller ones, the operator is obliged to stop with his right hand to the curb and with the left hand drive, the passenger steps out on the sidewalk in the most convenient manner.

Another great advantage is that the driver sitting on the left hand side is able to properly see vehicles approaching him, particularly when he is driving behind a motor car which he wishes to pass, at a time when he must be sure that he has a clear road. The left hand side is the logical position for the operator, and many American manufacturers are recognizing this feature, and are designing their cars accordingly.

BRAKES

The multiple disc brakes, which are an exclusive Metz feature, are constructed on the principle of the multiple disc clutch. One-half of the brake members are attached to the axle, while the other half are attached to the inside shell of the rear hubs. These are properly protected from dust, and when applied are quick acting and effective. The friction disc on reverse forms the second brake which is very effective.

TOP

The top is constructed with the idea of utilizing it, as a dust shield, when not put up. The bow sockets are carried by auxiliary brackets at the lower extremities of the seat rails, thus supporting the top which is encased in a neat slip, in a slightly as well as useful position.

GASOLINE CAPACITY

The gasoline is contained in the military tank attached to the back of the seat, which is raised high enough to furnish pressure by gravity to the carburetor, and contains a supply sufficient for 200 miles.

During the past year we have made exhaustive tests which have brought out strongly and clearly the durability of the car, and after years of experience in the manufacture of light cars, we cannot too strongly recommend it to intending purchasers.

As to its performance, it is only necessary to state that the car has repeatedly climbed Prospect Hill on the high gear. This is one of the highest points of land in the vicinity of the hill to the summit, a distance of almost one mile, the grades are recorded by the City Engineer as varying from five to twentyone per cent, at the steepest parts. This announcement is not merely advertising talk, as we are prepared to duplicate the performance with a stock car, at any time we are called upon to do so. We not only guarantee our car to negotiate this hill, but absolutely agree to return any purchaser the price paid for the car if it will not perform as represented.

With all due respect to other manufacturers, we know of no other stock car, at any price, that will negotiate this hill on the high speed, and in order to show the public our confidence in the Metz Car, we agree to guarantee this performance with any car turned out, and sell it to you under our "money-back" proposition.

This performance is not possible with the ordinary gear driven car of similar power, which demonstrates exclusively the very best advantages of the flexible friction drive for a runabout of this type. The fact, also, that the car has more than one horsepower to every fifty pounds weight shows very clearly the great advantage of the light friction driven car over other types.
